Bob Chilcott

Bob Chilcott is one of the UK’s major choral conductors and composers. Following the King’s College – King’s Singers route, from 1997 he has dedicated himself to composition and conducting, not least for young choirs, and has over a hundred works in print.

His workshops are in great demand and so we are very fortunate to have secured his services for what will be a challenging, exhilarating and rewarding day for singers in our area. He has an approachable style, and people have found his warming up, breathing and presentational techniques really helpful. At the end of a recent workshop the following comments were heard, “everyone voted for a repeat”, and “I will certainly try to get there if he comes our way again”

This is a great chance to spend a day singing and performing with a world famous composer.

Not only will you be singing marvellous music, but Bob Chilcott will include some of his ‘choral secrets’ on how to be a better singer.

So, whatever your vocal ability, do make a date in your diary and come along.
