

Choral Workshop on September 26th
COME AND SING!!
Limited places – Book early

Paul Spicer is Professor of Choral Conducting at the Royal College of Music and one of the leading choir trainers in the UK. He conducts five choirs on a regular basis; the RCM Chamber Choir and the Whitehall Choir, both in London, the Birmingham Bach Choir, the Birmingham Conservatoire Chamber Choir and the Finzi Singers.

Choral Workshops

Described as inspirational, Paul moves through some extensive physical and vocal warm-up exercises – all of which will be relevant to the music sung during the day – and moves to music making, which will hopefully inspire the singers to give of their best 100% of the time. The sessions are also intended to be continuous singing lessons as Paul works extensively on vocal technique, and all the music is prepared and rehearsed with good vocal production in mind. It is exhausting, rewarding and fun! The day will end with a performance of the music rehearsed during the day
